

Lights, Camera & Wardrobe: What to Wear for Acting Headshots

Are you a budding actor just like Joey Tribbiani, waiting to find your break in the days of your life? (Pun intended) You may have the most exceptional skills, but if you are not instantly recognizable, you may lose out on your chances of establishing your brand.

Imagine you are scrolling through the explore tab on Instagram. Which post do you click on first? It's the picture that stands out the most. Now imagine a casting director having loads of actor headshots. Which one do you think he would pick?

Your answer to this question explains the importance for actors to present themselves in the best light possible. For this, you may have to keep a lot of things in mind, but the most important part of taking that perfect headshot is - Your Clothing. What you wear for your acting headshots has the power to determine who you are as a person and hence, it's very important to make a lasting impression. This blog will be your guide and will help you navigate the world of wardrobe choices, ensuring you stand out among your peers.

Striking the Perfect Headshot: What to Wear for Acting Headshots that Make You Shine

Understanding the Role of Your Headshot

Before deciding on what to wear for acting headshots, The first thing that you should consider is the “WHY” behind your headshot. It is super important to know the purpose of your headshot before having one. This in particular will help you understand the kind of appearance that you must carry. To know this, ask yourself:

- What type of projects would I like to aim for?
- What type of roles can portray myself better as an actor?

Your clothing should enhance you as an actor and these questions can help you decide what you would want to wear according to the character you want to demonstrate.

Some suggestions for your next big role in the industry:

- Romantic Lead

A romantic lead has the perfect balance between striking an approachable look with a captivating presence. Clothes that fit well with warm and flattering tones should be your go-to clothing when portraying this character.

- Girl-next-Door

A Girl-Next-Door character should feel authentic, natural and down-to-earth. For this, you would have to stick to soft and light colors with relaxed and comfortable clothing.

- Anti-Hero

These characters often are intense and evoke mystery. Hence, dark colors can help you portray this personality well along with a sense of attitude in your body language while posing.

Color Makes a Difference

Consider two actors: one in a bright, patterned shirt and the other in a simple, solid black shirt. The bright color and patterns distract the directors and make it difficult for them to connect the personality they're trying to convey. On the other hand, the actor in the solid black shirt shifts the focus of the directors on his expressions rather than the clothing as the directors can straightly imagine them in various roles with nothing to distract them. Therefore, colors greatly influence the way you are perceived and hence, play a large role in determining your chances in making it to the cut.

Few tips that can help you make the right color choice:

- Go for Flattering Shades

Always aim to opt for colors that are more likely to complement your skin tone. For example, if you have light skin, go for darker colors and vice versa.

- Avoid distracting patterns -

As explained in the above example, distracting patterns can draw attention away from your face, so it would be best to avoid them at all costs. Instead go for classic patterns, they can give you a more timeless and versatile look which can be a great option for acting headshots.

- Consider the Background

The background is one of the most important aspects when considering acting headshots. Your headshot should complement the background to create a much more natural look.

The Right Fit is Essential

The fit of your clothing can either make or break your headshot. Too tight or too loose clothing can take all the attention away and may not even photograph well. Take into consideration your body shape when selecting the appropriate clothing and aim to enhance it. Above all, always ensure that you are comfortable in your outfit so that you shine in your headshots.

Select the Appropriate Style

This is an important aspect when it comes to deciding what to wear for acting headshots. Styling is the essence of an actor and your styling should reflect not only your personal taste but even the character you wish to play.

These are some styles that you can consider:

- Casual vs Formal - The look you choose depends on the roles you want to target. To choose a specific style, think about the kind of audition you will be going for and then dress accordingly.
- Layering - Layering is simply a great way to enhance your features at your headshot. For example, just a simple top with a fitted blazer may work wonders to your look without being overwhelming.
- Accessorize Wisely - Minimal accessories can enhance your look making you look more sophisticated. A simple gold necklace or a diamond stud earring can add a touch of elegance to your look.

Hair and Makeup Considerations

We spoke too much about clothing and style in this blog but now let's consider hair and makeup that can play a vital role in your headshot. A natural makeup look can enhance your features without being too heavy. Remember, casting directors want to see the real YOU, so a dramatic makeup should be a huge NO! If you often wear your hair a certain way, let that be reflected in your headshot to avoid any last minute surprises during auditions.
