

How to transform Connections into Opportunities with LinkedIn Alchemy?

Why are you on LinkedIn?

If your answer to this question is just to build a profile, then you would only connect with the people whom you know personally. But, if your answer is to get leads, find a job or grow your business then you should aim at growing your connections.

LinkedIn is a powerful tool when it comes to job search, growing your customer base or even growing yourself professionally. Having as many connections opens the door to a large network of contacts which helps you stand out in your own way. Many connections help you find & identify suitable opportunities for professional relationship building & personal branding.

People tend to be hesitant to add someone to their network whom they do not know. That is why, to encourage people to add you as a connection on LinkedIn involves presenting yourself as valuable & credible professional worth connecting with.

But once you have built connections, how can you determine the right way to build opportunities through your connections? Let us explore the top 5 ways to build connections that offer value!

Who are your ideal prospects?

Ideal prospects are individuals or companies who have the same expertise & are in the same industry or niche. Your ideal prospects can be your clients or customers, industry peers & influencers, recruiters & hiring managers, mentors or advisors, strategic partners & investors.

Finding your ideal prospects can help you to identify ways in which your ideal prospects can be beneficial to you. This can further determine how you can offer value to them in return.

To find your ideal prospects, you can use the advanced search feature available on LinkedIn by filtering criteria's such as location, industry, current company, past company, job title, etc.

Connecting with personalized messages.

Personalized messages on LinkedIn help you show your genuine interest in your prospects. It makes you stand separate from all the generic connection requests. It helps your prospects see that you are not just trying to grow your network randomly but are connecting for a specific reason & this helps them to accept your connection request.

Some tips for sending personalized messages are:

- Address the recipient by name
- Establish a common ground
- Explain your reason for sending the request
- Express genuine interest
- Brief & Simple
- Prompt them to take action

To personalize your messages, you can also compliment your prospects for their work.

Your content defines you

These days, posting valuable content is of utmost importance. With various choices available, people have the power to choose the one that offers great value to them. Do you want to be that choice?

Developing a LinkedIn Content strategy can help! Long form content is the norm but you can experiment with various other contents like carousel posts, video posts, newsletters & interactive content.

You can make use of LinkedIn Growth Hacking tips to create engaging content. Regularly engaging with your network by commenting on their posts, congratulating them on their achievements & endorsing their skills can help you strengthen your relationships.

LinkedIn personal branding helps you to shape your content the way you want it to be seen. This will help you maintain your online reputation.

Genuine Relationships are valuable

According to Trish Bertuzzi, the author of the bestselling book 'The Sales Development Playbook' - "Prospects are making their purchase decision based on whether they think you understand their problems & you have the knowledge, resources, & commitment to solve them."

She rightly pointed out a very important aspect of building genuine relationships with your prospects. You need to understand their pain points & then come up with a strategy for creating sales opportunities.

Joining LinkedIn groups can be a valuable strategy for professional networking, learning, & career advancement. It allows you to tap into a community of professionals who can offer support, insights, & opportunities for growth.

Offline communications for building trust

If you have succeeded in all the above strategies & built a genuine relationship with your prospects, you can proceed to take it to the next step by proposing offline communications - communications without the use of internet. This can help you to build trust, rapport & empathy & can allow you to communicate more clearly.

By using LinkedIn as a starting point for offline communications, you can leverage the platform to expand your network, deepen your connections, & foster meaningful professional relationships beyond the digital realm.

By combining these strategies effectively, you can turn your LinkedIn connections into valuable professional opportunities.
